SURVEYING ROUTE FOR BIG WATER PIPE THROUGH REDWOOD CITY

Preliminary Work for Hetch Hetchy Project Now Being Done in This Vicinity

Hetch Hetchy surveyors were here all week making a survey for the pipes that are to be laid from the Calaveras dam to the Spring Valley lakes in this county. The main will be constructed through the southern end of the town. The pipe is to be five feet in diameter. The line is to be constructed in connection with the Dumbarton bridge. Sooner or later the city of San Francisco is to acquire all the water rights of the Spring Valley Company, both in this county and elsewhere.

WILL MAKE STUDY OF BANKS AND CONDITIONS

A. P. Giannini, president of the Bank of Italy, will leave San Francisco next Saturday en route to Paris and other foreign commercial centers. According to present plans he will go from Paris to Rome and be two months in Italy visiting points of interest there as well as inspecting the Banca d'Italia Meridionelle, returning to France for May and June. During July and August he will visit London and other commercial centers in England. Leaving London the latter part of August or early in September he will return to the United States by way of Russia ond Siberia to Vladivostok, or by way of the Suez canal to India and the many places of interest in the orient.

In announcing plans for the trip Mr. Giannini said that he would take this opportunity to secure a vacation, although a great deal of his time would be devoted to matters of business importance. The banking situation in many of the foreign countries to be visited is in an interesting period of transition and he will make a close study of possible new methods or procedure that may develop. As head of the institution that has championed the cause of statewide branch banking in this country he is especially anxious to observe the operations of the larger continental banks where this same method is followed. Mr. Giannini will be accompanied of his trip by Mrs. Giannini and his son Virgil. Later they will be joined by L. M. Giannini, assistant to the president of the Bank of Italy, and by Miss Claire Giannini, who is completing her senior year at private school in Piedmont.

STAFFORD COMPLETES BUY GRAFT PROPERTY

Stafford, that has been pending for some weeks, was consummated yesterday, Mr. Stafford becoming owner of the block containing the postoffice, the garage and buildings on the corner. Work will proceed at once on the $40,000 two-story building that is to be erected on the corner. The upper story is to be used for offices and the lower part for stores to be conducted by Mr. Stafford. The transaction is one of the most important that has taken place in Redwood City for some years. It involves a big sum of money. Mr. Stafford is one of Redwood City's most progressive and wide awake business men.

PESCADERO PURCHASE PROVOKES PUZZLING PROBLEM

To determine what items should be charged to the respective funds of the county and to settle a vexed question for all time, Auditor J. J. Shields some time ago asked the district attorney to guide him in the matter. A bill passed by the county supervisors some weeks ago was held up by the auditor to have the question determined. The claim was filed by a Pescadero merchant. It contained about 300 items of various kinds of merchandise. The amount was $414.31. The claim was charged to the general fund of the county. Yesterday Mr. Swart gave the aduitor a very elaborate opinion showing much thought in its preparation. The document contained nine closely typewritten pages in which the subject was gone into very thoroughly. The following is a summary of the very able opinion:

"It is our opinion, therefore—First, that the claim is not properly itemized in that it does not show specifically when and where and for what public purposes the materials were used; second, if the materials were used on bridges they should be charged to the district road fund of the ditsrict benefited unless the work was done under the special circumstances provided under section 2712 above referred to. In this instance the special circumstances, the jurisdictional facts, should have been determined by the board of supervisors before the work was done and charged to the general fund.

"Third, if the materials were used in road construction, they must be charged against the road fund of the district unless the work was done under the exceptional case provided in section 2640. In this instance the jurisdictional facts must have been found in advance.

"By a four-fifths vote of the board of supervisors it must have been determined:

"(a) That the public convenience and necesisty demands the particular work.

"(b) That the cost is too great to pay out of the road fund of the district.

"(c) By resolution adopted by a four-fifths vote of the board they must have determined to charge the cost to the general fund."

PENINSULA SINGERS IN CONCERT FEBRUARY 13

The Peninsula Choral Society of San Mateo will produce its ninth program February 13 under the direction of Festyn Davies, with Kajetan Attl, harpist, as soloist. The program will consist of a number of choruses, incidental duets and a trio, and two groups on the harp by Mr. Attl, who is one of the leading harpists of the world. Under his skilled hands the harp is a solo instrument and not an accompanying instrument.

The Peninsula Choral Society has become recognized on this coast by critics as an organization to be reckoned with musically. It consists of 100 voices. Those who know Festyn Davies' work at Camp Fremont and at the blossom festival at Saratoga will realize that the concert on February 13 should not be missed.

Ben Marty, a baker employed by the Peninsula Bakery, was taken to the Quinnivere Hospital this week suffering from an injury to his leg which threatened blood poisoning.

SIN LEE PREFERS TO PACK HIS OWN BONES TO CHINA

Venerable Laundryman to Leave Redwood City in the Spring for His Boyhood Home

Sin Lee, the aged Chinese for 30 years proprietor of the wash house on Maple street, is preparing to leave for his childhood home in the Flowery Kingdom on March 1 and will sail for the land of his birth to spend the few remaining years left to him amid the scenes of his youth.

Sin Lee is now 75 years old. He came to California over 50 years ago, first settling in San Francisco and later coming to Menlo Park, where he remained for about five years, and then locating in Redwood City, where he has been atcively engaged in the laundry business. He has been a local character, well known and liked by all.

Many years ago he joined the fire department and no member of that organization was more enthusiastic than Sing. He was the first to respond to an alarm. He was the first at the fire, going wherever his chief directed him, not fearing danger or taking into consideration his personal safety. Sin was a brave fireman, none more brave in the department. At the banquets given annually by the members of the department Sin always had a prominent place and in the parades he also was given a position of honor. At the parade last year Sing appeared in his uniform and though stooped with the years of hard work he stepped out with all the enthusiasm and fire of his more youthful days. That, perhaps, was the last time Sing will appear in a public parade.

Sin learned many of the traits of the "Melican man," including a desire for strong drink. In the days of the saloon it would not be unusual to see Sin come out of a barroom arm in arm with a companion, both with "jags." Sing was a free spender and when on a spree would lavish money on his companions. He did a big business and made money. Everyone helped him. All were his friends.

Sin managed to save a snug sum for the rainy day. He goes to China with sufficient funds to live in luxury for the remainder of his days. Before he goes he will be given a farewell reception. In the far off land of his birth his memory will often revert to Redwood City, where he has spend many happy days.

Sin wants to go back before he dies so that he may be buried alongside his people. It is the custom of the Chinese to send the bodies of their dead back to China. It is a part of their religious belief to have the bones of the dead buried in the land of their birth. Sin prefers to go while alive rather than have his bones forwarded; they may be lost in transit.

Judge John Pitcher of Halfmoon Bay was at the court house Thursday greeting old friends. He drove over in an automobile and seemed to be as spry as when he used to visit the court house half a century ago. The judge is in his 95th year. For 41 years he has been the justice of the peace of Halfmoon Bay. It is safe to say that no man in the county writes a steadier hand or has any better penmanship than the aged justice. Mr. Pitcher is always glad to meet his old friends in Redwood City. He appears to become young again in greeting them.

AMERICAN CITY BUREAU TO ROPE IN CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MEMBERS

Booster Ball Last Saturday Evening Was Highly Successful as Social Event

The Redwood City Chamber of Commerce held a general meeting on Wednesday evening. There was a large attendance of members and matters of vital interest to Redwood City and vicinity were discussed at considerable length. An able address was delivered by a representative of the American City Bureau of San Francisco. The chamber entered into a membership contract with him. The campaign for new members will start on February 27. It is to be made a quick and snappy campaign, during which every citizen of the community will be arpproached. It is believed the membership roll will be swelled to 300.

The postal service to San Francisco at night was taken up and argued. tI was finally agreed to ask the postal authorities to send mail to the city by the 7:30 a. m. train instead of the 9:30, the first morning mail train.

Social history in Redwood City was made last Saturday when the long talked of big booster ball was successfully staged in Foresters' Hall. The chamber of commerce is to be congratulated on its splendid effort to boost Redwood City. It is a startling fact but nevertheless true that 612 people passed through the doors to participate in the merriment and show their loyalty to their city in boosting it a bit further toward its assured destiny.

After a few preliminary dances to "warm up," the grand march was started, headed by Mayor and Mrs. M. E. Ryan. As the marchers passed a given point they were presented with handosme carnival caps and bundles of serpentines. This of course started a riot of fun and color, all of which was successfully "caught" by Photographer Mason in threee splendid flashlight photographs. Those desiring copies may obtain same of the chamber of commerce as interesting souvenirs of the event.

During the evening the winners of the door prizes were announced and in this connection the chamber of commerce wishes to thank J. B. Perry for his donation of a quarter ton of coal, C. M. Thomas for candy, H. B. Gardiner for neckwear, George E. Stafford & Co, for a 3-pound tin of coffee, Hull brothers for mop, etc.

The dancers enjoyed one of the most remarkable musical treats ever heard in Redwood City. Newell Sharkey with his five-piece orchestra, including notable performers from San Francisco, provided a program of such extraordinary perfection as to cause free comment that the music was one of the finest performances ever given outside of the big cities.

All arrangements for the dance were in the hands of the chamber of commerce entertainment committee, of which W. T. Kellogg is chairman. Floyd Grainger acted as floor manager with his usual skill, while President Frank K. Towne, Secretary-Manager R. H. K. Smith, T. C. Rice, L. F. Prior and Eric Thompson, other members of the committee, were all doing yeoman work in bringing to a successful conclusion the greatest social event ever held in Redwood City.

A GREAT POPE GONE

In the death of Pope Benedict XV the Catholic church has lost a great leader, the world a great spiritual guide and humanity a good friend. He became pope during the trying times when the world lost all its Christianity. Of all popes, Benedict XV was put to the severest test. His service to the world in maintaining a neutral position under such trying conditions will be recorded in history hereafter and of the popes he will be named as one of the greatest.

His name will go down in history as the only European ruler who during the world war did not become hysterical. With sympathetic heart, calm judgment and thorough knowledge of what the world needed for a secure and lasting peace he appealed to the belligerent nations in August, 1917, and unfolded then principles that formed the basis of the armistice. He inspired the efforts of the disarmament conference and will be an inspiration to the economics conference if the conferees are wise enough to discard all selfish ends and work for the welfare of the world.

Benedict XV was a man of letters, but despite his literary attainments he understood thoroughly and appreciated the workings of the mind of the unlettered man and his great love extended to both classes in equal proportions. His work as a diplomat will live forever and his actions under the trying conditions of the world war will be patterned after in years to come.

His qualities of mercy and love, which were shown through his daily kindnesses, brought him nearer the poor and suffering the world over.

AIN'T IT AWFUL?

Some small town legislators and a number of farmer members are seeing awful things just now. They held a meeting down at Fresno not long ago and the stories that were told of the awful corruption and the tyrannical control exercised by the big cities of California over the country districts were frightful. As a result the assembly decided to ask the people of California to amend its constitution regarding the makeup of the state senate to prevent the big cities from having control of that august body. As finally agreed upon the proposal reads:

"For the purpose of choosing members of the state senate the state shall be divided into 40 senatorial districts, as nearly equal in population as may be, and composed of contiguous territory, to be called senatorial districts. Provided, however, that no county or city and county shall contain more than one senatorial district and no senatorial district shall contain less than 20,000 population. Provided further, that no county or city and county shall be divided nor shall a part of any county of city and county be united with any other county or city and county in forming a senatorial district.

"The senatorial districts shall be numbered from 1 to 40, inclusive, in numerical order, commencing at the northern boundary of the state and ending at the southern boundary thereof.

"The census under the direction of the congress of the United States in the year 1920 and every ten years thereafter shall be the basis of fixing and adjusting the legislative district; and the legislature shall, at the first session after the passage of this amendment, and after each census thereafter, adjust such districts and reapportion the representation so as to preserve them as nearly equal as may be."

This Fresno assemblage was called to consider reapportionment. Members from country districts according to statements given out, desire to be freed from the domination of the members from the big cities. To listen to their tales of woe one could easily imagine a condition where the big town fellows simply ignored the existence of legislators from the rest of the state and proceeded to pass laws to suit their own fancy.

All of which reminds one of the A. P. A. nightmare of a few years ago.

The proposition put forth by the Fresno gathering violates one of the fundamental principles of democracy. It would say to such counties as San Francisco and Los Angeles with almost a million people each, that a small county with a bare 20,000 population could have a senator just the same in voting power as the one to be allowed to the big county. There's nothing fair about that, so it is unworthy of even passing consideration.

The truth in some of the so-called country members have been getting a little of the treatment they have been administering at home. One of the warmest advocates of the new plan is Herbert C. Jones, one of the senators from Santa Clara county. In that county San Jose is the dominant town. It is a hog of the hoggiest sort when it comes to political affairs. With a population of a little more than 30,000 in a county containing 100,000 people there are two state senators and two members of the lower house. San Jose always grabs the two senators, never fails to have one of the members of the lower house and generally has both. Santa Clara county has great fruit and farming interests, yet the San Jose members take more interest in such propositions as increasing the terms of superior judges to twelve years and reorganizing the public school system to make it an autocracy than they do in real agricultural affairs. As for allowing the farmers representation on the legislative delegation, that is something too absurd for consideration in Santa Clara county. Yet these same legislators put up the pitiful squeal that the "cow counties" are being abused by the city members. Indeed it is awful—absurd.

It is a pretty safe prediction that the Fresno proposition will be defeated if it ever comes up for a vote. What is more, it will be beaten in the very sections from which its strongest advocates come. There is nothing fair or reasonable about it to secure the support of intelligent people. The members of the legislature from city districts are ready and willing at all times to consider and act favorably on measures that will be of benefit to the real farmers. But they have a right to insist that the voting population of a city is just as good, just as intelligent, just as much entitled to adequate representation as the people in a sparsely settled section. That is what most people favor. They will insist that equality of representation be maintined.

THAT EDUCATION BILL

It appears that even in our neighboring town of Palo Alto, where the chief industry is selling education, sentiment in support of the Smith-Towner department of education bill is not unanimous. The organizations dominated by teachers naturally have resolved in favor of the proposition to establish a department of education. Members of the chamber of commerce have listened to talks by professors and others both for and against the measure, but hesitate to take action. Evidently Arthur Free will get some conflicting opinions in reply to his request for advice.

Rev. W. B. Thorp in his talk opposing the bill has pointed out that the measure opens up the way to graft of various sorts; that the provisions are impossible of enforcement and that the idea of subsidizing any one occupation is establishing a precedent that is dangerous.

In the appeal for a big fund for education of foreigners coming to this country it seems like the expenditure would not be justified by the results secured. Those who are educated would not need the instruction; those without education generally are too old to learn a new language readily and will learn all they need to carry on the work for which they are fitted. The great duty of the American people is toward the children. Those of foreigners as well as of the natives can and do attend our public schools. While they are in the formative stage they can learn the language easily. What is more, they can learn to be good American citizens. If the teachers fail to instruct them along these lines they ought to be fired out of their jobs.

Our member of congress will be pleased to have a mass of personal opinions bearing on the subject. If you are a good American it is only doing him a favor to tell him what you honestly think. When he shall have received this information from many sources he will be able to act more easily in accordance with the desires of the majority of his constituents. Write him a letter.

A COURAGEOUS ACT

The adoption of the resolution to seat Senator Newberry was a notable achievement in popular government. At the behest of President Wilson, Henry Ford became a candidate for the senatorship in Michigan and there was set in motion in his behalf the greatest combination of commercial and political organization ever seen in any state in any campaign. Nothing but the most herculean efforts could have saved Michigan and the United States senate from the humiliation of having the senatorship occupied by a man notoriously unqualified and who would not be, with all the facts known, the choice of a majority of the people of his state.

This is not a denial of the remarkable qualities which Mr. Ford possesses in a high degree. He is a man of genius in his particular line, but he is ignorant of American history and unsound in his ideas of national finance and economics. His election, if it had been accomplished, would have been due entirely to the enormous publicity potentialities of his business organization and the power of the Wilson federal machine.

The men in the senate who had the courage to withstand the onslaught of letters and petitions instituted by a nation wide craftily planned propaganda deserve the highest credit. It takes real courage for a man who is an aspirant for reelection to defy such a great organization as that which was at work in opposition to Senator Newberry.

A BUSINESS BAROMETER

The steel trade, generally considered the barometer of industry, is beginning to show a decided improvement. We exported 20,000 tons more of steel manufactures in November than in October and the United States Steel Corporation recently announced that the amount of unfilled tonnage on its books December 31 was 4,268,000 tons, or nearly 18,000 tons in excess of that of November 30.

TIMBER CONSERVATION

Chief Gresly of the forest service declares that timber is being consumed in the United States four times as fast as it can be grown. He urges conservation measures at once that will save the fast disappearing supply. A report on the subject has been made to congress and it may be that the present session will see legislation along the line recommended.

Experience is a great teacher, but it has nothing that way on the lack of experience.

A deep thinker is never a shallow talker.

"If at first you don't succeed," it's generally better to get another job.

Duck Hunting Reminiscences

By CLAUDE FOX

Story No. 40

All the old timers, together with the present generation and many of the school children of today, remember W. J. McGarvey, brother of Henry McGarvey, of this city. "Mack," as we all called him, passed away but a short while ago. Owen McGarvey, father of the boys, was one of the pioneers of the county and formerly owned the old ranch at the foot of the Woodside grade, which is even at this date referred to as the McGarvey ranch.

Will McGarvey was a man of exceptional ability and for years occupied a position as a deputy in the various offices at the court house, principally in those of the county clerk and recorder. His intimate knowledge of the affairs pertaining to the administration of county matters, coupled with his ability as a bookkeeper, fitted him for any position which he might be called upon to fill.

Early in life, when but a boy, he was the victim of one of those lamentable accidents caused by the careless and thoughtless handling of a shotgun in the hands of a companion, of which I have often spoken in these articles and the like of which we read every week in the newspapers of the day. It was one of those cases of a shotgun that was "not loaded," and which requires the services of a physician and very often an undertaker to prove to the contrary.

Just on the outskirts of this city, to the westward, lived the family of Theodore Finger, another of our pioneer residents, and one of the members thereof was Gussie, a son, of about the same age as Will McGarvey. The two boys were often in each other's company and one day while at play the "unloaded" gun was discovered by the Finger boy. Picking it up, he took aim at his companion, who was but a short distance away, and as the muzzle lowered somewhat, pulled the trigger. The "unloaded" gun was loaded, and through the almost criminal carelessness of a third party who had left it in such condition, Will McGarvey was maimed for life. The charge of shot struck the unfortunate lad in the leg, tearing the muscles, sinews and bone to such an extent that the physicians were barely able to save the boy's life and from thenceforth to his death "Mack" was permanently crippled.

He made a brave struggle through life, however, and secured much of the pleasures and enjoyment that fall to the lot of man. For one crippled as he was he could run remarkably fast and often engaged in games with the boys of his day out on the old common.

A strange fatality followed in the wake of the Finger family. Gussie, through whose carelessness Will McGarvey suffered for the balance of his days, accidentally shot and killed himself up on the creek which bore his family name, just across from where John P. Weller now resides. He had been hunting quail along the creek bottom and had killed a bird which fell on the west bank. Climbing up, drawing his shotgun after him by the muzzle, the weapon was discharged with fatal results. Dropping the gun he staggered 200 feet toward his home, where he was found dead shortly afterward by Jim Viner. Later the father, at that time quite an elderly man, while passing over the railroad track near his home, got his foot caught between the rail and plank crossing and an oncoming Southern Pacific train hurled him into eternity.

It was during the second year of my duck hunting career that an incident happened in connection with Will McGarvey over which I have many a time laughed. It was just after the sun's rays were beginning to beam out over the frost covered landscape of the old Sweeny ranch. At that time there were not only wild ducks here by the thousands, but hundreds of geese as well, honkers, brandt, speckled breasts and the white or snow goose. Just after sunrise they could be seen flying in every direction heading for the grain fields. On this particular morning I was on my way to the first fence and was almost opposite the lone oak which still stands in the field just east of the city. Down along the fence I could see three men strung out at intervals of a hundred yards waiting for a flock of geese to pass over. As I neared the trio I saw that one of them was Will McGarvey, and when I was about 100 yards away he called out to his companions to lay low, that a flock of honkers was coming. Instinctively I dropped down in the tarweed myself, as ten or twelve of the noble Canadian birds loomed up in the eastward, flying toward the waiting hunters. They came on straight as an arrow for "Mack" McGarvey, who was occupying the middle position at the fence. Slowly and deliberately I could see him raise his gun to his shoulder; then came two puffs of white smoke as the weapon belched forth charges of heavy shot and black powder. One of the grand old honkers started slowly downward on almost a line with the spot where I was lying. It was hard hit through the body, but was making a game fight for life. Lower it came until it was flying not ten feet above the ground, and it looked as though it was impossible for the apparently fast dying bird to remain in the air much longer. McGarvey had placed his gun against the fence and was coming up the field on the run. When I saw the goose was going to pass close to me I raised up on one knee and threw my gun to my shoulder to give the finishing touches to the old gander. Mack saw me and realized my intention.

"Don't shoot! Don't shoot!" he called out. "That's my goose."

I was almost on the point of pulling the trigger, but lowered my gun when told not to shoot, and the bird went on unmolested. Just after passing me a sudden change in the flight of the crippled goose was noticeable. The hemorrhage, which was sapping its lifeblood, had evidently ceased and the way that bird recovered was a caution. Since then I have many times seen wild ducks do the same thing. Climbing gradually higher, he swung around and headed out toward the marsh and the last I saw of the old honker that "Mack" said was his was a small black speck about as large as a toy balloon way out over the Elbow slough. McGarvey came up all out of breath.

"Why didn't you let me shoot, Mac?" I said. "You would now have your goose. I only wanted to be sure that you got him."

What he said then and continued to repeat for a half hour afterward would hardly do to print for the readers of this article. We walked down to the fence together, where he had left his gun, and then I learned that his companions were Sam Hall and Alec Little, two of the old timers who were out quite often taking a crack at the wild birds of the marshland. Hall was a great josher and had no mercy that day on Will McGarvey.

"Where's your goose, Mac?" he yelled out before we reached the fence. "I thought you had him half picked by this time."

Then Alec Little came up and reminded Will that Thanksgiving was only two days off. I really pitied him, for he had lost a grand bird which he almost had within grasp.

Years have since passed swiftly. All three whom I met that day have departed hence, but I never hear the members of the duck hunting fraternity speak of the Canada goose or honker but what I picture in my mind's eye that beautiful November morning, that wounded bird leaving the flock and gradually sinking downward toward me, and I can almost hear McGarvey's voice ring out on the sharp morning air, "Don't shoot! Do n't shoot! That's my goose."

HOT TIME WITNESSED AT COUNCIL MEETING

There were some warm passages of words between H. C Tucsen and M. E. Ryan, chairman, when the matter of the purchase of the 750-gallon pumper fire engine came up at the meeting of the town trustees. Ryan insisted on the purchase of the engine at that meeting while Tuchsen asked taht the matter be deferred until such time as other makes of engines be looked into. After considerable warm discussion the question was deferred until February 6.

The Redwood City Water Company's offer to give the town an option on its water plant for $30,000 was referred to the town attorney.

F. M. Worthington of the Southern Pacific sent a letter saying the waiting room at the station hereafter will be opened at 5 a. m. to accommodate early patrons.

The ordinance changing names of several streets was adopted and the city clerk was instructed to notify residents to renumber their houses according to the new plan.

The Standard Oil Company was granted permission to make sewer connections for its station at Woodside road.

The city clerk was instructed to request stage companies to arrange their schedules so as to provide for stops at Broadway and the highway.

Pescadero

The people of the coast side are not very much excited over the proposed railroad, but if it should come we will meet it with open arms. Some think it is the Western Pacific and others are sure it is the Southern Pacific, but neither one of these companies has made any statements, so it is guesswork on the part of the prophets.

We understand a new bank will be started here in the near future and that some of our leading men have already subscribed nearly all of the stock needed. If our merchants and large ranch owners will get behind this movement it will surely be a success.

SUMMER EUROPEAN TOUR

Rev. J. W. Lundy, pastor of the Howard Presbyterian Church, Oak and Baker streets, San Francisco, well known in central and northern California as an organizer and conductor of European parties, is now organizing another party for the coming summer vacation.

The company of 30 people which he took through Europe last summer had a memorable and most enjoyable trip, and never did a company of tourists return home more enthusiastic and delighted over their experience than the members of that party. The itinerary for the coming season includes the principal cities of the following countries: France, Italy, Switzerland, Germany, Holland, Belgium, England, Scotland and Ireland.

A visit to the battlefields of the late war and to Oberammergau to witness a performance of the far-famed "Pasison Play" will be special features of the trip this coming summer.

The business management of the party will be in the hands of the travel department of the American Express Company. This arrangement gives the members of the party an absolute guarantee of protection against loss or embarrassment on the trip, the positive assurance that they will be properly taken care of and that all provisions of the itinerary will be carried out regardless of the unexpected illness, financial embarrassment or other mishap that might befall the individual organizer and leader. The cost of the trip will be much less than last year, owing to the reduction of rail artes on the continent and the contemplated reduction of steamship rates on the Atlantic.

The itinerary, giving all the details of the trip and all the necessary information, in regard to baggage, passports, steamer reservations, price and conditions of membership, is now in printed form and Mr. Lundy will be glad to mail copies to all who are contemplating an European trip.

We understand that a few copies can be secured by applying at the local office of the express company.

MENLO PARK NEWS

The coldest morning in the history of Menlo Park was yesterday, when the temperature was 22 above zero. At Palo Alto it was 18. Even the "oldest settler" could not recollect when it was so cold.

Barney Larrecou has been appointed truck driver for the county truck by Supervisor John MacBain. The machine was purchased by the third road district some time ago. It is used for hauling material in all parts of the third township. Mr. Larrecou is an expert at the wheel.

Fred Nessler, proprietor of the Little Green Door, has received a large consignment of valentines which will be exhibited next week. Popular prices will prevail. Valentine Day is February 14.

A government expert arrived at the base hospital during the week to test the land there for a foundation for the new buildings to be erected shortly. He will give the site a thorough test before selecting the spot where the structures are to be located.

J. C. Murray, the well known blacksmith, suffered a slight stroke of paralysis during the week and is confined to his apartments. Mr. Murray, during the palmy days of the Stanford stock farm had charge of the shoeing of the celebated trotters of that period. He shod some of the famous racers produced at the farm in the nineties. His fame as a horseshoer became national. In those bygone days he met many of the celebrities of the track and associated with wealthy race horse owners. No man is better posted in San Mateo county history than Mr. Murray. He was born on the site of the old St. Dennis church, Portola, and grew to manhood there. He learned his trade at Redwood City many years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Lion are rejoicing over the arrival of the stork at their home at Ravenswood last week. The good bird left three pretty kittens there, much to the joy of the Palmer Brothers' menagerie, where Mr. and Mrs. Lion are sojourning for the winter. M. Golden, the owner of the circus, is wearing a 6x9 smile, for the moment the kittens opened their eyes they were worth $1,000 apiece to him. They were kept in darkness by the side of their mother for three days. No one was permitted to see them. The circus attendants say that if anyone had come near the kittens during that time he would have been killed by the parent, who would sooner see them dead than taken from her. They will be one of the attractions of the circus when it goes on the road next March.

Installation of officers and initiation of new members were features of the meeting of the Companions of the Forest Tuesday evening in Native Sons' Hall. Mrs. Frank Johnson and Mrs. John Tuttle became members of the circle and later witnessed the impressive ceremony of installation of officers. Supreme Chief Companion Miss Hunter, Past Supreme Chief Companion Mrs. Ghiselli, Supreme Secretary M. Boehm and Grand Deputy Mrs. Reed of San Francisco were present. The following officers were installed by Deputy Reed, assisted by Supreme Herald Ghiselli: Chief companion, Nancy Nunn; subchief companion, Ruth Midgley; past chief companion, Muriel Harrington Marcus; financial secretary, Susan Gale; treasurer, Bertha M. Kuck; recording secretary, Fannie Kurtz; right guide, Ruth Walsh; left guide, Irene Carter; marshal, Loretto Harrington; inner guard, Mrs. Gale; outer guard, Helen Strong. The retiring past chief companion, Ruth Midgley, was presented with a beautiful brooch as a token of the great esteem with which she is held by the members of the circle and in gratitude for the good work accomplished through her efforts. After the ceremonies a delightful repast was served and the remainder of the evening devoted to the entertainment of the guests present.

Mrs. George Poole passed away in Palo Alto last Saturday and was interred on Monday. She was the second wife of George Poole, a former resident of Menlo Park. His daughter, Mrs. Nellie Branson, is a noted scenario writer, and his other daughter, Mrs. Amy Williamson, reside in Burlingame. A son died some years ago.

The Native Daughters will hold an important meeting on next Monday evening, at which the announcement of the engagement of a prominent young Menlo Park lady will be made. Mrs. Grace Clohan, formerly Grace Thomson, will be given a reception in celebration of her recent marirage to Joseph Loverich of Palo Alto.

In the death of P. J. Maloney there was removed from this section an old and esteemed pioneer who was in times gone by a leading factor in the political history of the county. He lived to a ripe old age. He saw the county grow from small beginnings to large proportions. Mr. Maloney passed away last Saturday afternoon following an illness of several months. He was surrounded by his family when the end came.

He was born in County Kerry, Ireland, 84 years ago and as a young man went to Australia, where he remained for several years. In 1865 he came to California, first settling at Halfmoon Bay. In 1868 he came to Menlo Park, where he remained until his death. Most of this time he was engaged in forming. For years he leased the Johnson ranch, where Camp Fremont was located during the war.

Mr. Maloney was always a staunch Democrat. In 1882 he secured the nomination on that ticekt for the offie of county assessor. There was a battle royal for the office that year. H. M. Templeton was the Republican nominee and C. W. Hartsough ran on an inpedendent ticket. Maloney was elected. He received 615 votes, C. W. Hartsough 444 and Templeton 374. Mr. Maloney on taking office appointed W. J. Murray of this place and H. W. Schaberg of Redwood City his deputies. The late John Handley was his outside deputy. That year C. N. Felton was defeated for the assembly by James V. Coleman, who received a majority of 36 votes.

Maloney was defeated for a second term by the late George W. Lovie.

Mr. Maloney was a public spirited man, always taking a leading part in all things looking for the betterment of the community.

The funeral on Monday was the largest ever seen in this locality, his friends coming from various sections of the state. There was a wealth of floral tributes about the casket. The Church of the Nativity was crowded with friends and relatives. The celebrant of the requiem high mass was Father F. O'Kelly. Father Glennon and Father C. E. Kennedy were inside the chancel rail.

F. P. Reach, D. P. Flynn, D. E. O'Keefe, J Bracesco, Frank Derry and James Farrell acted as pallbearers. Interment was in Holy Cross cemetery, Menlo Park.

Maloney is survive dby his widow, Hanora Maloney, four daughters, Mrs. J. B. Clothier, Mrs. C. Cullen, Mrs. J. W. Morey and Mary F. Maloney; five sons, Thomas P., William A., Cornelius E., James P. and Frank Maloney, and a brother, Timothy Maloney. A son, John E. Maloney, died some time ago.

Pescadero

A. R. Rease, the popular garage man, was a city visitor Monday. Mr. Rease intends to install a full line of the latest machinery in connection with his repair shop.

At the last meeting of the executive board of the Pescadero community service the following officers were elected to act for the next year: Chairman, Carl J.Coburn; vice chairman, Asa T. Weeks; secretary, Mrs. Mary G. McCormick; treasurer, J. C. Williamson. During this month the center is being visited by Miss Randall of the state university, who is instructing the young folks in recreational work and play. These lectures are being very largely attended and much enthusiasm is manifested by all.

The high school election carried by a small majority. Although a good deal of interest was shown and the opposing elements tried their hardest to win, it is believed that no hard feelings will exist. As one of the strongest opponents remarked, "The majority rules."

C. F. Humphrey, the popular big ranch owner, informs us that after a hard fight in the interest of the coast side he now has received great encouragement in his fight to have a state highway built down the coast. He has had several interviews with the leading men on the state highway commisison and they have promised him their active support in his undertaking. It is the intention of Mr. Humphrey to take a trip to Sacramento in the near future and present the claims of the coast side to Governor Stephens. Mr. Humphrey will be accompanied by C. H. Widemann and Asa T. Weeks. Governor Stephens is greatly interested in the proposition and wishes to be given the data which he can place before the members of the legislature.

The new Pescadero fire department is now fully installed and in fine working condition. This improvement is one of the greatest additions which we could have in the town and something we have needed for a good many years. Those who have given $100 or more toward the undertaking are J. C. Williamson, A. R. Rease, Manuel Goularte, F. S. Duarte, McCormick & Son and Mrs. McCormick and it is to these people that the people of Pescadero can give their thanks for having started and financed such a venture. The Pescadero community service is giving a show every week for the benefit of the department and a good many hundred dollars will be raised in this way.

Pescadero Lodge No. 226, I. O. O. F., installed its officers last Thursday night. After the installation a banquet was served by the ladies of the Rebekah Degree Lodge. A good time was enjoyed by all.

Will Smith

Will Smith, a former old time resident of Redwood City, passed away at his home in Berkeley on January 5. He will be remembered by all old timers in this section. Mr. Smith came to Redwood City as a mere boy with his parents. He graduated from the local grammar school in 1872. His father was engaged in the meat business here and about that time sold his interests to the late L. J. Tisdale and moved to Berkeley, where the younger Smith engaged in the butcher business and remained in it until the time of his death. He was the last of his branch of the Smith family, his mother having died last year and his sister, Sue, the year previous. He never married. Mr. Smith was aged 62.
